Best Backyard BBQ Ever: How to Make It Happen

Nothing says summer more invitingly than steaks sizzling on the grill. Whether it's a small family gathering or a fabulous shindig, when you start up the grill, you have an instant party. How can you make sure your culinary creations are a hit? It doesn't take study at the Cordon Bleu, but it does take a bit of know-how. The first rule is to stay safe. That includes washing everything, never reusing the plate you designate for raw meats, and keeping water handy in case of flare-ups. It also means no rare hamburgers. The Official Scott Robert's Website offers additional tips that are certain to make your party pop. Here are 10 of his best.

1. If you're using briquettes, light them about 30 minutes before starting to grill. This gives them time to heat and avoids the taste of starter fluid.
2. When using charcoal, line the inside of your grill with aluminum foil for faster cleanup.
3. Choose marbled meats for tenderness.
4. Make chicken skin crispy by rubbing it with oil or butter before cooking.
5. Don't pierce meat during cooking lest the juices escape.
6. Coat salted veggies with butter, wrap tightly in aluminum foil, and "throw it on the grill."
7. Add salt to meats after cooking to avoid drying them out.
8. Use a stiff wire brush or a piece of crumpled foil to keep your grill grate clean.
9. When using a marinade, marinate overnight or at least an hour before grilling.
10. Experiment with different marinades to find a flavor you love.

Prepping Your Home for Sale: Get the Most Bang for Your Buck

Every seller wants to maximize his or her profit. Partnering with a real estate agent is a great start. Homeowners can further increase their bottom line with a few simple steps. To get the most out of your house, complete the following before you list.

Hire your own home inspector. If a buyer's inspector finds issues with your home, you can expect your profit to shrink. Stay one step ahead by hiring your own home inspector to unearth any potential issues.

Invest in repairs. In addition to addressing any trouble the home inspection reveals, it's a good idea to have cosmetic issues addressed. Prospective buyers notice things like cracked tile, chipped baseboards, or a squeaky floorboard, and this will be reflected in their offer.

Upgrade where it counts. You don't have to renovate your whole house to turn a healthier profit. Make small, impactful swaps, such as switching out lighting, cabinet hardware, or shower heads for cleaner, more contemporary options.

Add a few new accessories. Fresh flowers and potted plants go a long way in making a room feel inviting. For a cozier living room, drape a cable-knit blanket over the couch. String Edison bulb lights over a patio and put an Adirondack chair on the front porch. These small touches add major warmth.

Treat it like a model home. To sell your house quickly and for the most money, treat it like a house you've been hired to stage. Put personal effects into storage, declutter, remove artwork that could be seen as too loud, and make sure the house is absolutely spotless.

Reduce Waste with These Food Storage Hacks

One of the best ways to manage your grocery budget is to store your food properly.

Start with the fridge. Not all parts of your refrigerator are created equal. Ignore the built-in egg storage in some refrigerator doors. Keep eggs in their cartons. Those doors are warm and won't keep the eggs. Additionally, dairy products are best stored on top shelves where the temperature is most consistent. Meat stores best on the bottom. Keep in mind that meat should only stay in the refrigerator for four days, fish for two. Vegetables and fruits should be kept in separate crispers. Some fruit, including apples and pears, can cause vegetables to spoil.

Counters are also important for storing food. Bananas, melons, and citrus fruits should be stored here. Tomatoes, potatoes, and winter squash are also best kept on the counter, along with garlic, onions, and shallots. As a bonus, these colorful foods can double as decorations and add beauty to your kitchen. Bread should also be stored on the counter, but only for two days. Wrap it in foil or place it in a Ziploc bag. After two days, move it to the refrigerator.

In your pantry, airtight containers are key. They keep your pantry clean and make dry goods last longer. Spices should be kept here to protect them from heat, light, and humidity.

Finally, remember that your freezer is good for more than meat storage. Stock and wine can be frozen in ice cube trays and muffin tins. Once frozen, place the cubes in freezer bags. Thaw to use at your convenience!

5 reasons why people choose to renovate

1. They need more space.

It's hard to put a price on comfort. Maybe they've outgrown their current accommodations, or they are making room for a growing family, many people choose to renovate their home for increased space.

2. It's time for a new kitchen or bathroom.

Maybe it was the old cabinets in the kitchen or the outdated tile in the bathroom, but eventually, many homeowners decide it's time for a change. Given that kitchens and bathrooms are the most common home renovation, it's no surprise that these two rooms make the list.

3. Complete an unfinished basement.

Exposed concrete and joists aren't always the most attractive feature. For many homeowners, placing the finishing touch on their basement is just what their home needs.

4. Their home is a fixer-upper.

Many homeowners decided that, despite its appearance, their future home had a certain charm that they couldn't resist. When they decide the timing is right, they pick a project and start to begin to renovate.

5. Certain rooms need to be larger.

Need more closet space for your new wardrobe? Is the master bedroom just a touch too small? Many homeowners decide that select rooms in their home need to be larger. If they purchased an older home that may have smaller rooms, or they decide their master bathroom needs more space, they choose to renovate.

Do you want to make your home more modern? Are you looking to increase the value of your property? The number of reasons why homeowners choose to renovate are countless and may range from fixing safety issues to making their home more efficient.

It may be a small addition to a closet or a whole house renovation, but when homeowners decide it's time for a change they turn to a lender to help make their dream project come true.

Consumer Recalls: What You Need to Know

How do you know if the products you buy are safe? Paint can be toxic. Sprays may be carcinogenic. A badly designed crib can be fatal. Paranoia aside, consumers regularly hear about massive recalls — for cars, toys, kitchen appliances, and more. It can be difficult to keep up with the latest warnings. What can consumers do to protect themselves?

In MIC, Christy Rakoczy offers several suggestions:

- Register new purchases immediately, so the company has your contact information should a recall occur.
- Search the Consumer Product Safety Commission by product name to find information on recalls of appliances, clothes, electronics, furniture, children's products, sports equipment, outdoor gear, and household items.
- Check the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration for information on vehicles and transportation products.
- The U.S. Department of Agriculture and the Food and Drug Administration provide recall information on food products.

Make Big Use of Small Outdoor Spaces

Yes, it is possible to throw big-effect parties in small spaces. A lot depends on how wisely you use furniture. If you don't have a lot of room for guests and tables and chairs, buy small furniture and arrange it along the outside of your space. This way, guests can easily get to food and drinks while mingling with others.

Additionally, choose furniture that is easy to move or can have multiple functions. Some people use small counter islands for tables. They're sturdy and come with storage space. Floor cushions can work as large chairs. You can easily add more or less and store them when they're not being used.

Folding chairs may also be helpful. Remember, parties are about building relationships, so your priority is to provide a good structure for connecting people.

Ask the Agent: This Month's Question

When is the best time to sell my home?

Sellers logically want to put their homes on the market when they will sell quickly and for the best price. To achieve this, they must find the busiest home-selling season — for their market. In most areas, this season is spring. For many regions, this time of year offers warmer weather and more daylight for shopping. It's also prime time for families to buy if their goal is to get settled in before the next school year begins. Launching in spring, the busy season typically peaks in June, then tapers off as fall arrives.

However, some areas are less affected by weather changes or may be affected by other factors. The timing and demand for houses may be more or less pronounced at different times of year, depending on the location. This is where real estate agent expertise comes in handy. Your agent is intimately familiar with the local market and can best advise you when your market is hot.

Warm Lentil Salad

Try something new! Makes 4 servings

- 1 cup French green lentils
- 1 bay leaf
- 2 ½ cups water
- ¼ cup + 2 tablespoons olive oil, divided
- 1 cup thinly sliced onion
- 2 cloves garlic, minced
- 2 tablespoons red wine vinegar or sherry
- 1 tablespoon Dijon mustard
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 1 teaspoon pepper
- 2 large carrots, shredded
- 1 cup diced tomato
- 1 tablespoon chopped mint
- 4 ounces fresh goat cheese, crumbled

Rinse lentils. Combine lentils, bay leaf, and water in a pot and bring to a boil. Reduce heat and simmer for 20 minutes, uncovered, until tender. Remove bay leaf and drain lentils. While lentils are cooking, heat 2 tablespoons olive oil in a skillet over medium heat. Add onion and cook, stirring often, until tender, about 10 minutes. Add garlic and cook until fragrant. Remove from heat. In a large bowl, whisk together vinegar, mustard, salt, and pepper. Whisk in remaining olive oil. Add lentils, onion mixture, carrots, tomato, mint, and goat cheese, and toss to combine. Serve warm.
